Nerine Group of Fiduciaries has shown support for colleague Naro Zimmerman who took part in a three-day triathlon to raise money for local charity the Eleanor Foundation.

The challenge, which he undertook with his brother Greg, involved swimming 6km, cycling 100 miles and running the Guernsey marathon all over three consecutive days.

Nerine provided a donation towards the cause. In total the duo's successful effort has already raised more than £3,750, surpassing their target amount of £2000.

Mr Zimmerman, who is Nerine's business development assistant manager, said he was enormously pleased with the support he and his brother received.

"We've been overwhelmed with the response and are extremely grateful to anyone who has contributed. The Eleanor Foundation is doing incredible work to build sustainable lives for those less fortunate – in this case through the installation of clean water wells in Tanzania.

"We both trained hard and are proud of the achievement but are particularly thrilled that we managed to exceed our target amount by so much."

Nerine's group finance director Robin Smith said: "Nerine is very proud of what Naro and his brother have accomplished. Any one of the three events alone would have been no mean feat so this challenge undoubtedly took an astonishing amount of determination and passion – all in the name of a very worthwhile cause. We're always pleased to support our staff in their endeavours to challenge themselves and serve the community."

The Eleanor Foundation was formed in 2012 in memory of International Development student Eleanor Carey who was killed whilst cycling in London in December 2011. Her ambition was to work towards providing sustainable futures for communities and the objective of the foundation is to achieve this aim.
