12 January 2018

Today marks the end of an era. After a long and distinguished career, Neal Duquemin retires as Group Deputy Chairman of Nerine Fiduciaries.

I have had the privilege of working with Neal since 1975 during which time he has always been a loyal and trusted colleague to whom I owe personally a debt of gratitude for his unfailing support. Whether it be his fellow Nerine directors, the staff past and present in our various offices, board colleagues with whom he served as an independent director or the countless clients and professional advisers around the world who have worked with Neal, he will be sorely missed for his diligent and measured approach and keen sense of wit.

Nerine prides itself on its solid professional values and Neal has been part of the bedrock on which those values were founded.

The loss of Neal from the Nerine family is however, his home family's gain and we wish him a happy and deserved retirement with the opportunity to spend more time with Debby and his family.
